

"If HLID were not here deaf students would not be able to achieve anything. We'd go back to what we had before - being in the streets and not knowing anything, being illiterate. I might have been illiterate if HLID had not been here for me."

HLID Assistant Principal Fadileh Al Hiary
HLID alumna and the second deaf person to obtain a university degree in Jordan

THE EPISCOPAL DIOCESE OF JERUSALEM

Six thousand members in 27 parishes and more than two dozen humanitarian institutions – schools, hospitals, and centers for children with disabilities – in Palestine, Israel, Lebanon, Jordan, and Syria.

Since 1988 American Friends of the Episcopal Diocese of Jerusalem has built a network of individuals and church communities whose caring and generosity help sustain the humanitarian institutions of the Diocese. Our mission is to raise awareness about the hope these remarkable ministries in the Holy Land offer vulnerable and marginalized families every day. We believe peace and prosperity can be achieved when people have access to comprehensive healthcare and when children receive a quality education. We believe in the hard work of building hope.

A safe haven for 110 children and young people ages four to 25, the Holy Land Institute for the Deaf offers a full range of therapeutic services for hearing-impaired, deaf, and deaf-blind students, a K-12 academic boarding program, and vocational training.

HLID serves some of the most impoverished families in Jordan. Often parents' livelihoods are affected by their own deafness, leaving them unable to pay HLID's modest tuition. HLID receives no government funding and is subsidized by the Episcopal Diocese of Jerusalem, which has been deeply impacted by the economic downturn brought on by the pandemic.

This Easter the AFEDJ community is working to raise $100,000 to support ten deaf and deaf-blind students for a full academic year. As the pandemic-driven economic downturn in Jordan persists, your generosity is needed to keep these children at HLID.

"What shall we do? Shall we turn them away? Tell them to do the best they can? My brothers and sisters, if we are to be faithful servants of Christ, we cannot send these children away."

Archbishop Suheil S. Dawani
Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Jerusalem
